Looking Back — 1980

1980 was a significant year for the department in dealing with the problem of overcrowding. The Prison Overcrowding Emergency Powers Act was passed by the Legislature and approved by the Governor. The Legislature adopted legislation which paved the way for the department's long-range plan for a statewide regional prison system and also specified a process the state must pursue when selecting a prison site. A new facility was opened and a long awaited for court decision on crowding was issued.

The importance of all new laws was made clearly evidient in October when Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Ray Hotchkiss placed a ceiling on the number of inmates we could accept into our system. This was in response to a lawsuit alleging that crowding amounted to cruel and unusual punishment. The court order fixed the system's capacity; required the departmemt to phase out temporary housing by 1984, to provide each prisoner with a single cell or 60 square feet if they are housed in a dormitory, and to provide one toilet and lavatory for every eight inmates and a shower for every 15. Hotchkiss also required the department to slightly liberalize parole policy and increase its use of community residential programming. If overcrowding continued to be a problem, the order allowed the department to transfer newly arriving inmates to county jails as volunteers.

In responding to the order, Director Johnson summarized the five-year-old crowding problem, and offered what the department considered to be the only logical long-term solution.

"Despite the good faith effort of all of state government, we have not been able to solve the state's five-year-old prison crowding problem. Even the 4,000-plus beds added to the corrections system since 1975 have failed to balance capacity and population. We have not been able to acquire prisons or develop alternatives fast enough to keep ahead of the population growth. Public resistance to prison sites and halfway houses has not helped.

"This court order is ample evidence that this state has a serious crowding problem that can no longer wait to be solved. But it is only a short-term solution to the problem. The major long-term solution is prison construction."

In August, the Phoenix Correctional Facility opened. The newly remodled medium security prison for men is the former women's division of the Detroit House of Correction. All the men housed at this facility have been returned to prison because they violated parole or regulations of the state's halfway house program.

Early in 1980 a joint Executive-Legislative Task Force on Prison Overcrowding was established. Chaired by Rep. Jeffrey Padden, the Task Force was charged with developing long and short-range solutions to crowding.

In July the Task Force released an extensive list of recommendations that included a 90-day roll back of prison sentences, increased use of prison alternatives, expansion of community based programs and new prison construction. To raise funds for four new regional prisons, it proposed that voters adopt an income tax increase of one-tenth of 1 per cent. This proposal was drafted and put on the Nov. 4 ballot by the Michigan Legislature. Voters rejected it soundly in the November 1980, election.

Confronted with the disappointing results of the November ballot proposal and the circuit court decision limiting our capacity, we were fast approching the end of the calendar year and even more quickly running out of solutions. With less than two weeks left in December, the Legislature passed and the Governor later signed the controversial Prison Overcrowding Emergency Powers Act that would let the Governor roll back minimum sentences of prisoners by 90 days. It was viewed by the department as a temporary short-term measure to alleviate our problem of crowding. The act specified that we must abandon the temporary housing of prisoners by 1984, and gave us the necessary tool to keep the prison population under the capacity certified by the Commission.

In 1980 the Legislature adopted legislation which paved the way for the department's long-range plan for a statewide regional prison system. The bill gave the plan force of Law, and also required the department to develop a plan to abandon the Michigan Reformatory by 1990.

The Legislature also specified a process the state must pursue when selecting a prison site. It removed this activity from the political process which, in the past, had worked against the location and selection of sites. It gave the department the final authority in this matter and mandated that the community be a full partner in the process.

While the director was encourged by the passage of the Emergency Powers Act and the regional prison and selection site legislation, he was careful to point out our need for new prisons.

"Tight economic conditions will make it difficult to secure the funds needed to begin construction of the prisons we need now, but we will not be able to put this solution aside indefinitely."

In 1979 the U.S. District Court in Detroit ordered the department to design a plan to reduce ineguality in the treatment of women prisoners in several areas. The case was referred to as the Glover suit, and the plan that came from it was submitted to the court on Jan. 1. It covered academic and vocational training and counseling, apprenticeship programs, prison industries, incentive good time, paralegal training and discontinuing use of the Kalamazoo County Jail to house women. The corrections camp for women also was mandated in the order from the federal district court in Detroit because the state was not providing equal treatment in some programming for women prisoners. To comply with this order, Camp Pontiac, the first corrections camp for women , began receiving prisoners in May. The camp, which housed male prisoners since 1949, was designed to hold 71 women when full. Opening of the camp also allowed the department to discontinue use of the Kalamazoo County Jail for the overflow of women prisoners from the only state prison for women offenders. Planning began on a new camp for women.

Court Dispositions

The tables that follow illustrate data supplied to the Michigan Department of Corrections by all Michigan Circuit Courts and the Detroit Recorder's Court. The charts and graphs cover all prisonable offenses handled by the courts during calender year 1980.

A-1 Court Dispositions By District

A-1 gives the total number of cases handled by each court in 1980 and the disposition whether it was prison, probation or a jail sentence. The percentage columns show the percentages of dispositions that were prison sentences, probation or jail terms. The remaining columns provide a breakdown of the type of offender receiving the sentence.

Prisoners And Prisons

These tables and charts present information on the state's prisons and prisoners. A map shows the location of all prisons and camps. Among the data illustrated are the crimes for which inmates are incarcerated, the population growth in each prison, GED program testing results and critical incidents in each prison.

This section also contains statistics on Michigan State Industries and the Office of Health Care.

Michigan State Industries, operated by the Bureau of Prison Industries, employs about 900 inmates in a wide variety at manufacturing and service units at the State Prison of Southern Michigan, the Michigan Reformatory and Marquette Branch Prison. Industries also are planned for Huron Valley Women's Facility and the Kinross Correctional Facility.

The Office of Health Care directs all health care services for the department and operates a psychiatric hospital at the Riverside Correctional Facility in Ionia. These charts and tables illustrate use of medical and dental services by prisoners during 1980.

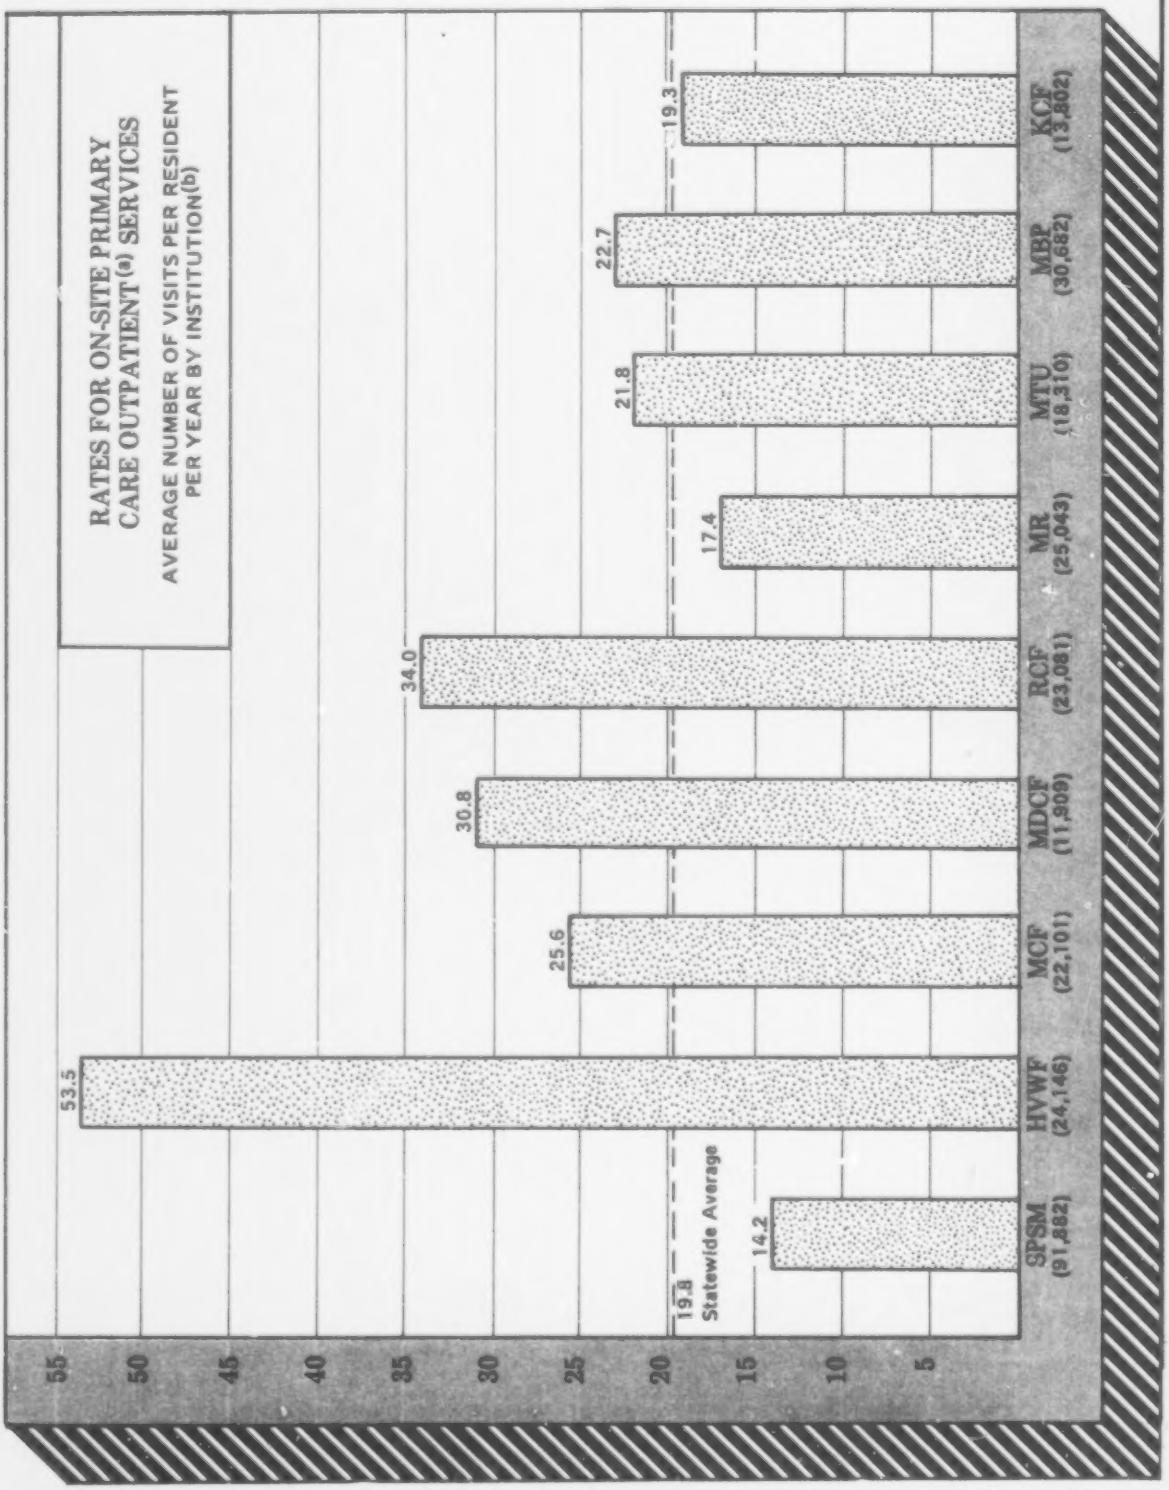
C-10 represents the utilization of on-site primary care outpatient services at each institution. Some of the variation can be explained by differences in age, sex and security levels.



(a) Primary care refers to basic or general health care services for the more common and simpler illnesses.

(b) Actual number of primary care visits shown in parenthesis.

C-11 a On-Site Inpatient Summary

C-11 represents the utilization of on-site inpatient services in those institutions with on-site inpatient units.

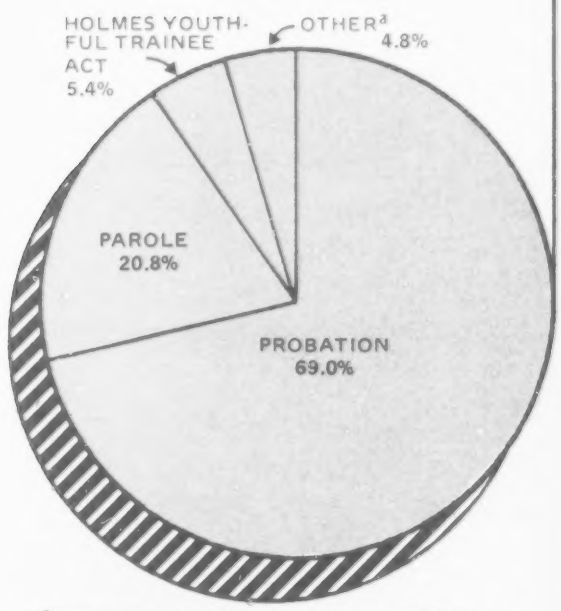
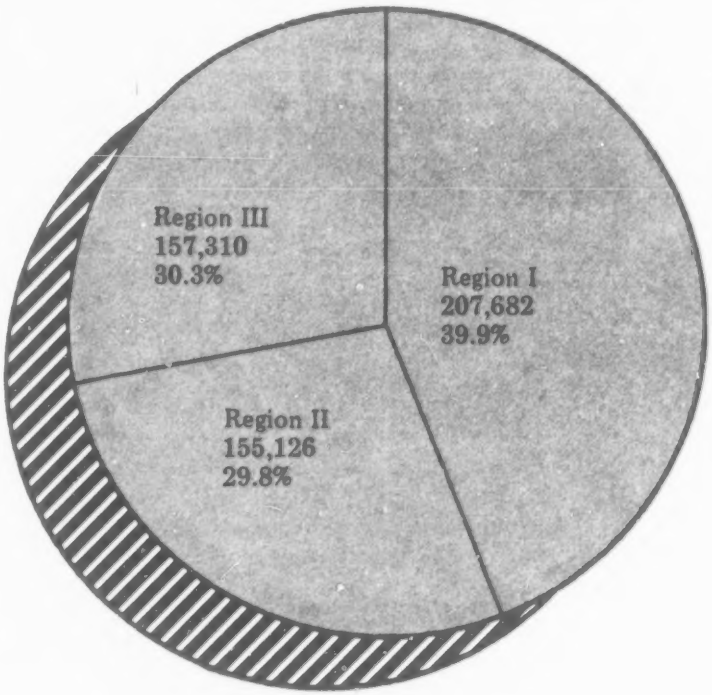
SUPERVISION



[a]Delays, Resident Home, Furloughs, Work Pass

It can be seen that most of the Bureau's time is spent in supervising parolees and probationers. In the area of supervision, 69 per cent of the time is spent on probationers and 21 per cent on parolees. In the area of investigation, 85 per cent of the Bureau's time goes into pre-sentence investigations.

E-3 Work Distribution by Area



The Bureau measures workloads by assigning unit values to the various tasks. As an example, each completed pre-sentence investigation equals 5 units and each client supervised is counted as one unit.

The pie-graph represents the total amount of parole and probation work units done during 1980 by state and county parole and probation agents.

In most Michigan counties parole and probation agents average 80 work units.

Community Programs

Community Programs is a unit within the Bureau of Field Services. It is responsible for the operation of the department's community-based corrections program. The statistical charts and graphs illustrate the unit's activities and growth in 1980.

F·1 Program Movement

During 1980 the community programs count continued to increase substantially. Although the end of the year count was 2,128, it peaked in November at 2,177.

SERVICE POPULATION			AVERAGE DAILY COUNT			TURNOVER RATE
1979	1980	% CHANGE	1979	1980	% CHANGE	1979	1980	% CHANGE
5,300	6,157	+16.2%	1,564.8	1,834.0	+17.2%	3.38	3.35	—0.9%

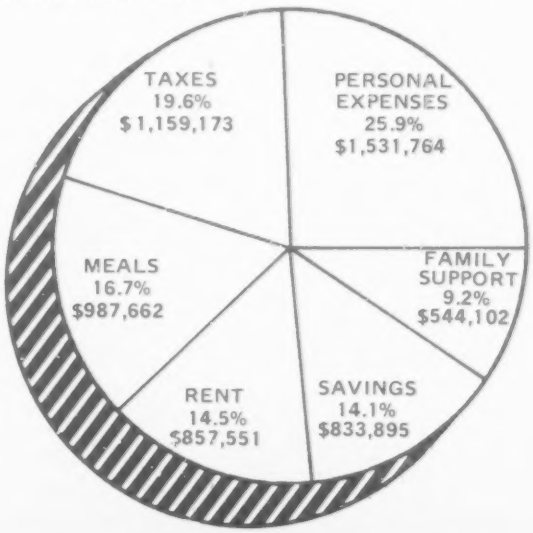
F·2 Program Change

Both population indicators, service population and average daily count, showed substantial and almost identical increases during 1980.

ENDING COUNT	ENDING COUNT	INTAKE			TERMINATIONS
1979	1980	1979	1980	% CHANGE	1979	1980	% CHANGE
1,687	2,128	3,845	4,470	+16.3%	3,613	4,029	+11.5%

F·3 Resident Income

With the economic recession, resident earnings were only slightly greater than those of 1979, about $2,000 difference.

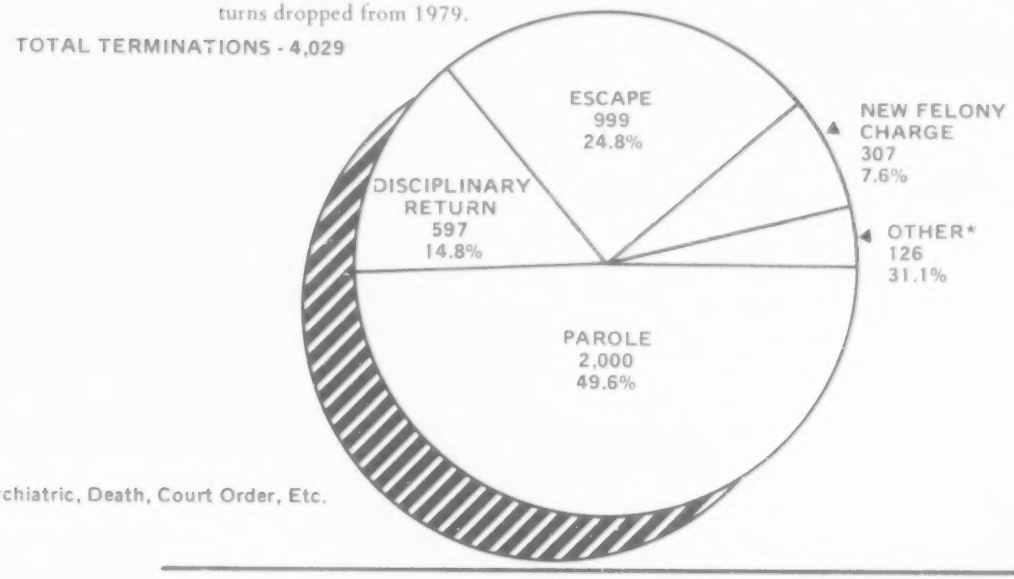


Total Gross Earnings $5,914,147

Terminations

F-4

For the second straight year successful terminations (paroles) constituted less than 50% of all terminations. Escape and new crime rates increased while disciplinary returns dropped from 1979.

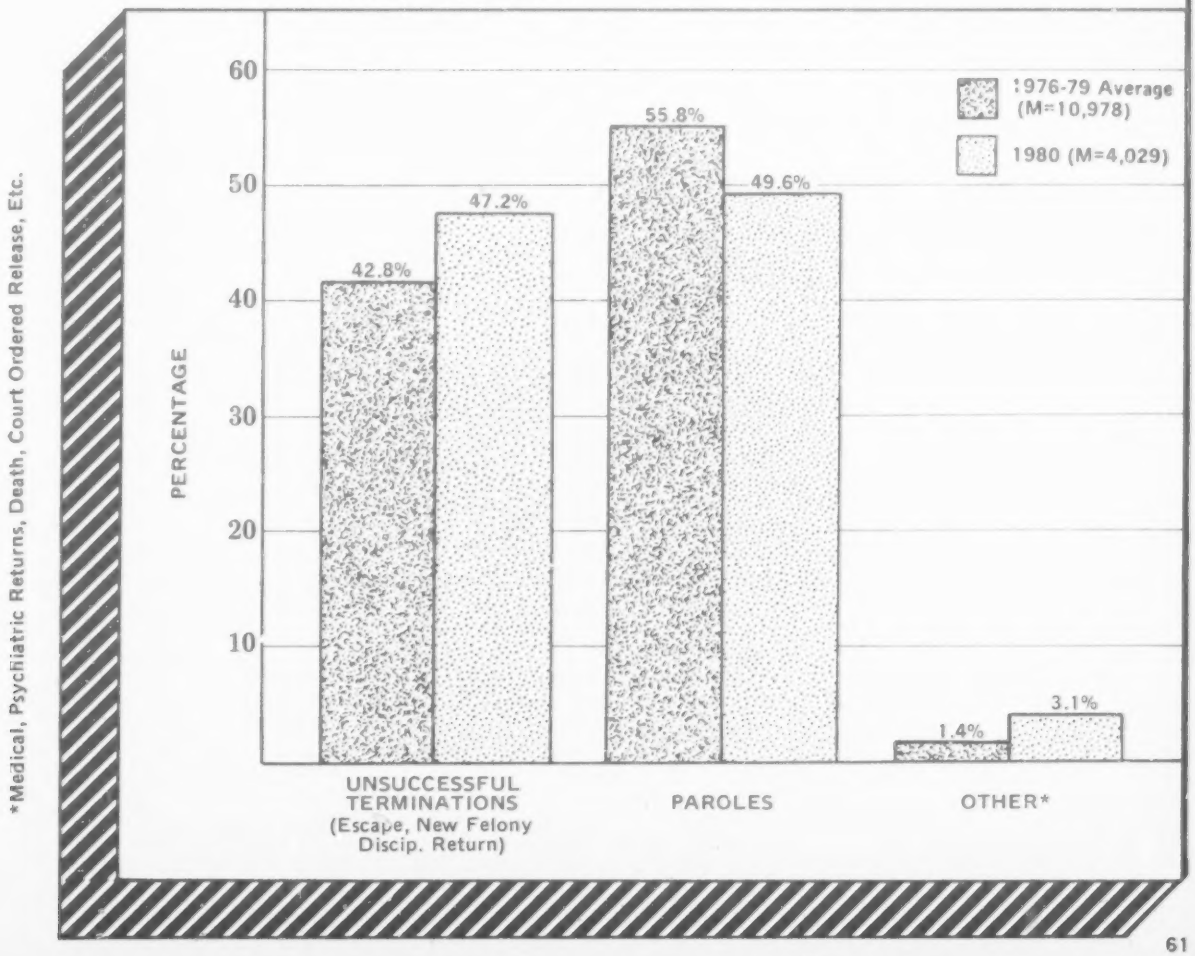


*Medical, Psychiatric, Death, Court Order, Etc.

Total Terminations; Comparison Previous Years

F-5

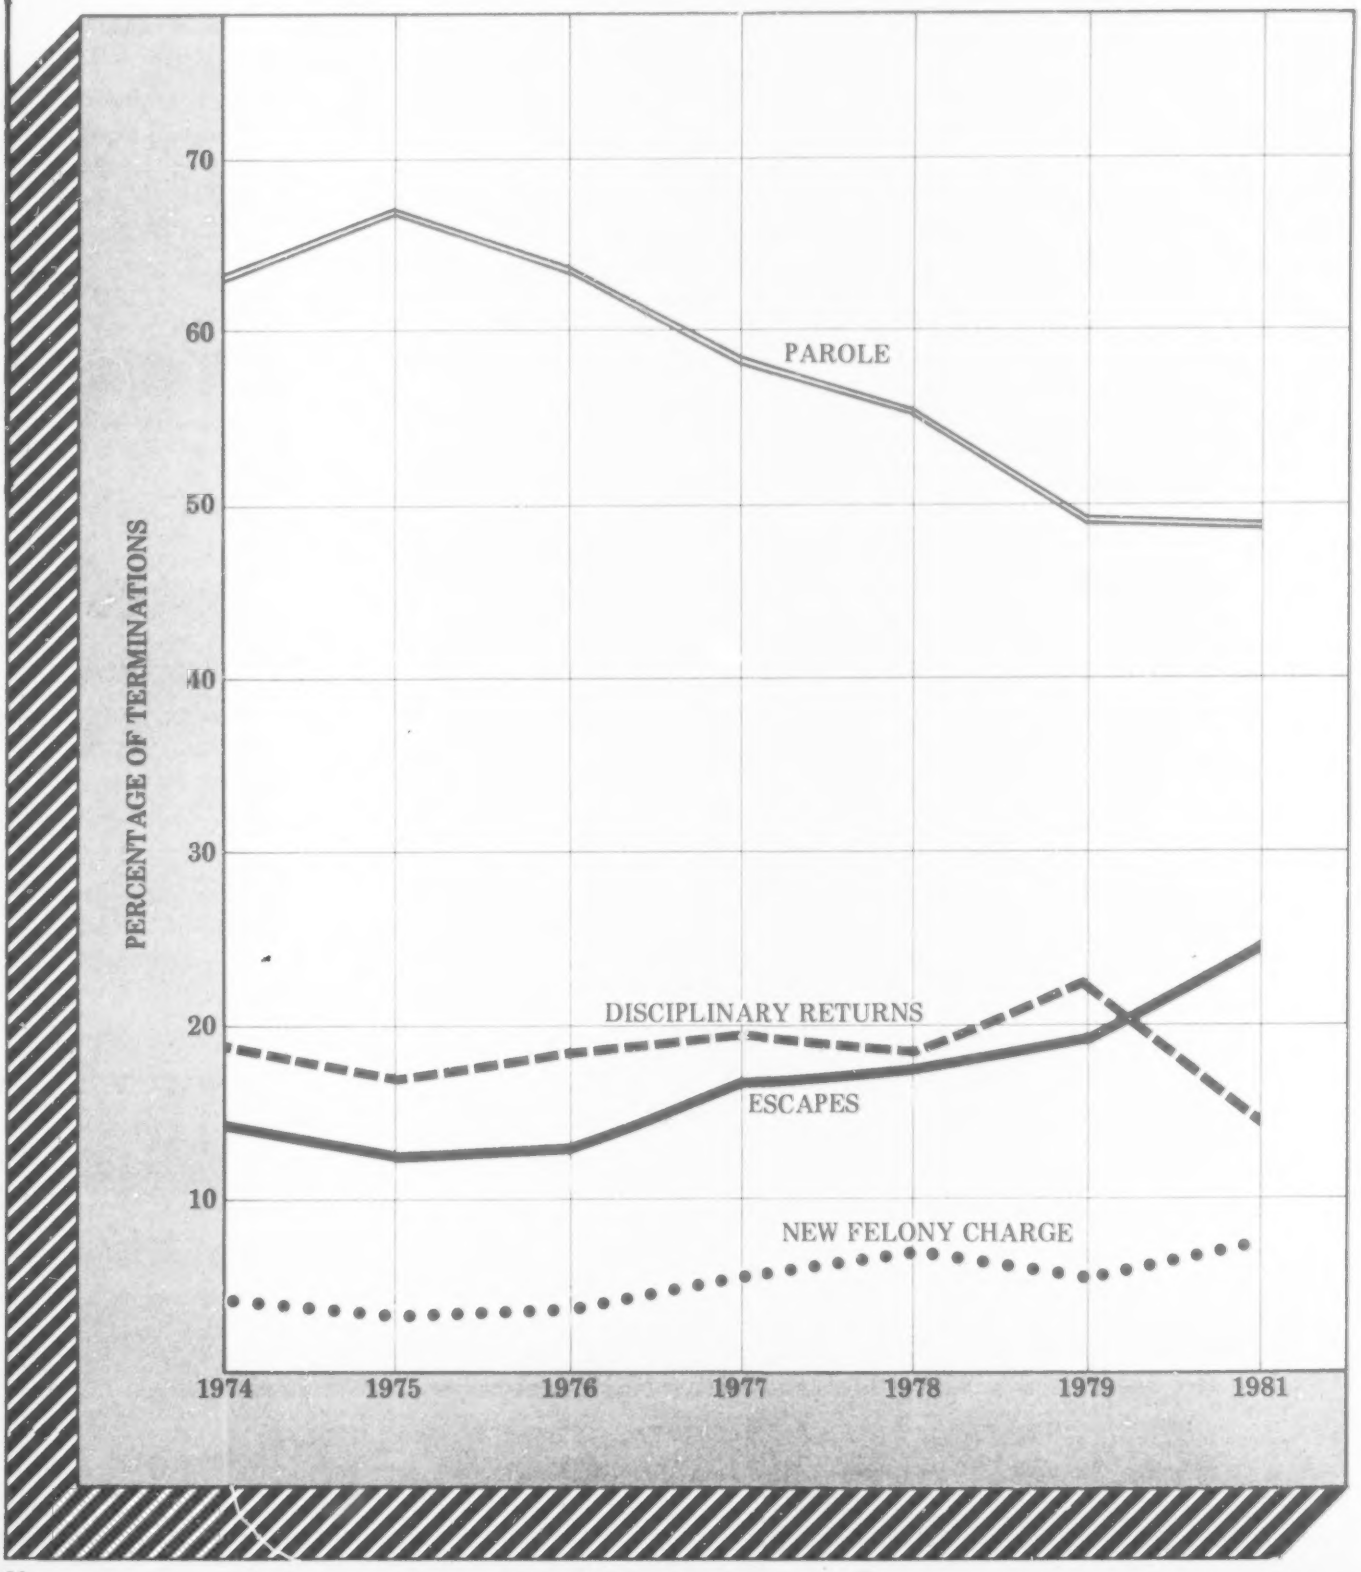
Termination groups viewed as percentages over the last seven years reflect a steady decrease in paroles and an equally steady increase in escapes. New felony charges reflect only a slight increase.



F-6

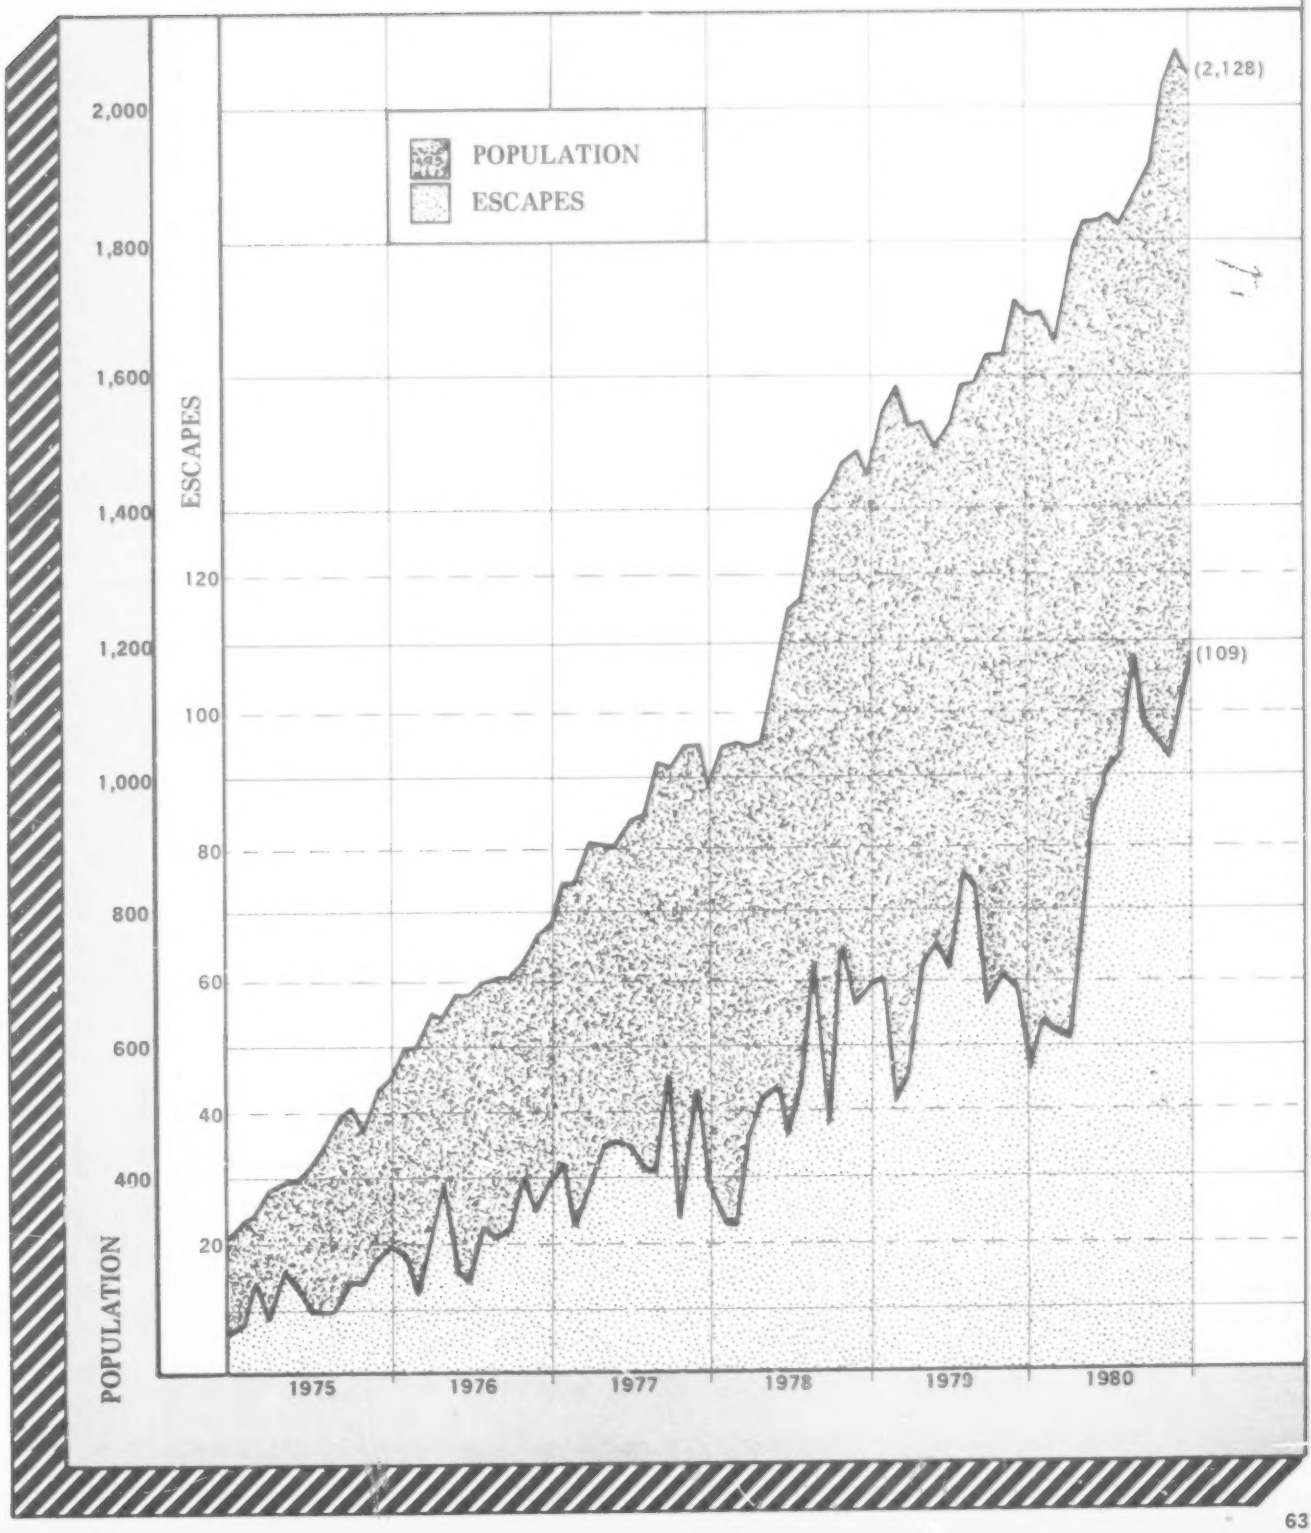
Percent Terminations

Unsuccessful termination percentages for 1980 increased moderately over the last four years average. At the same time the parole percentage dropped significantly.



Population Trends F·7

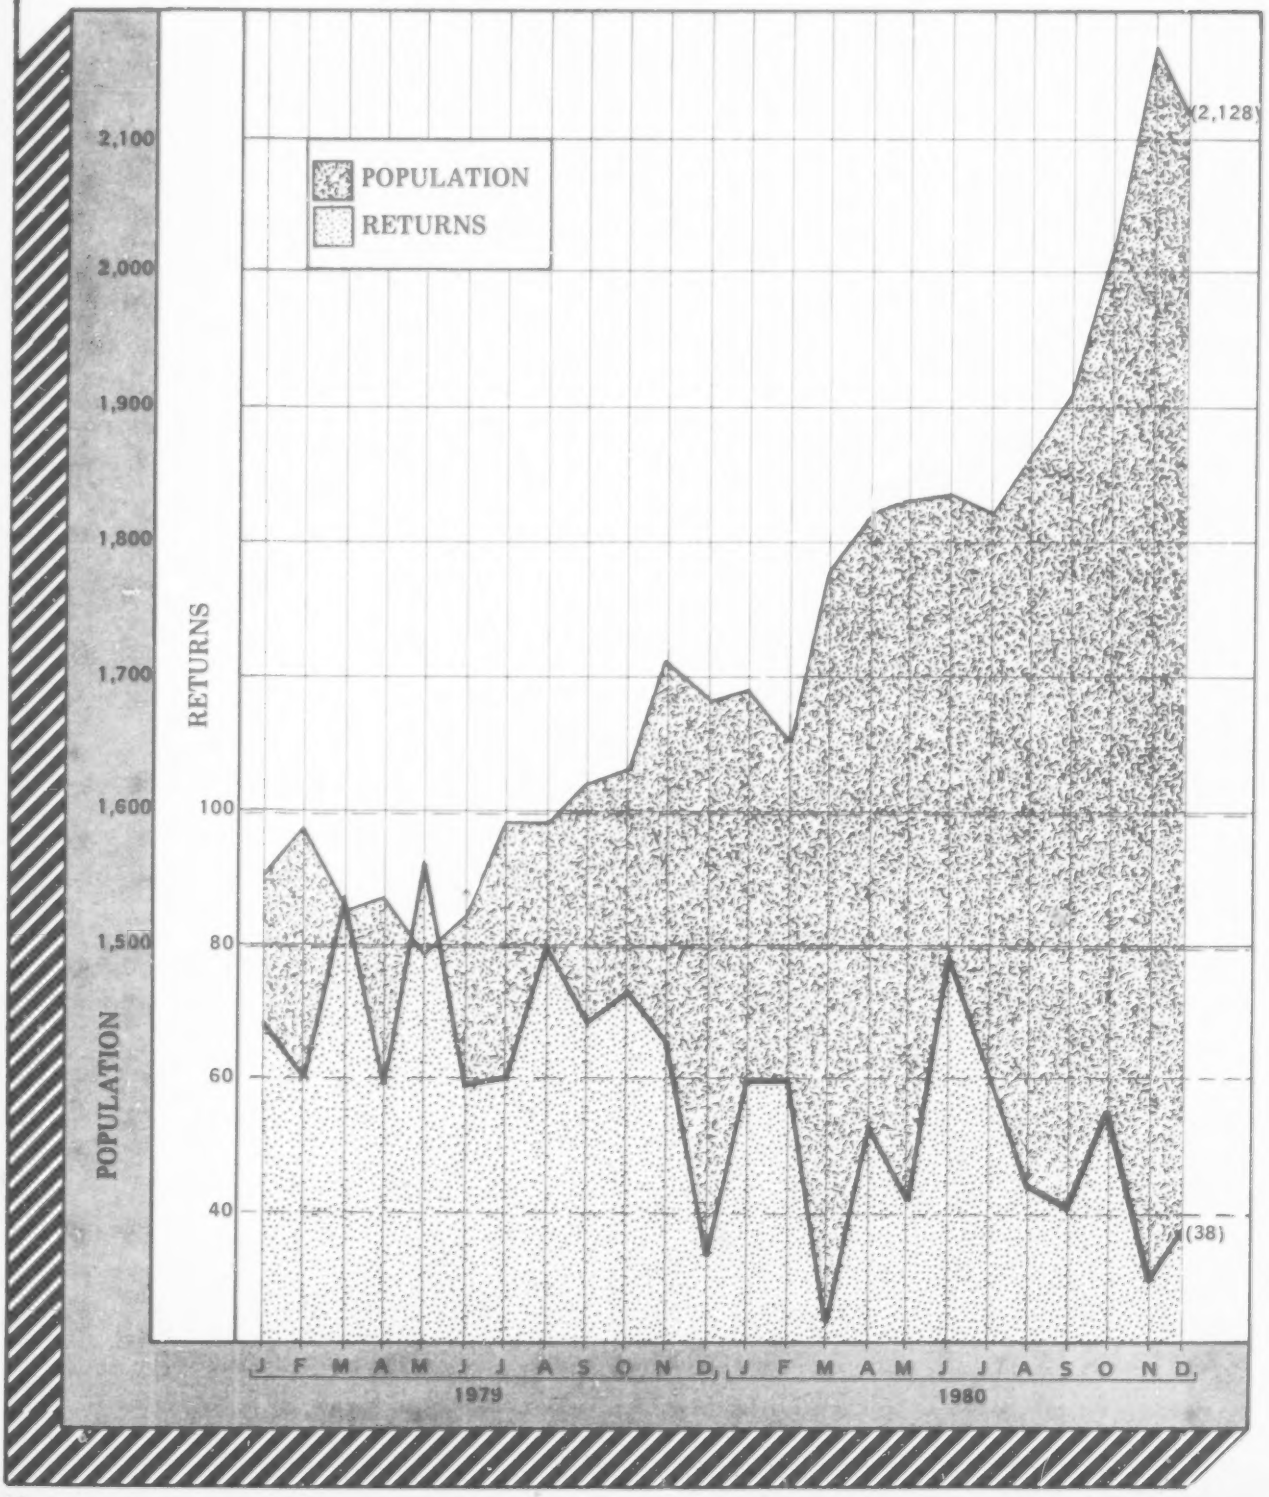
The population trend for the last two years has been increasingly rapid growth. In contrast, disciplinary returns, though displaying large fluctuations, have shown a general decreasing trend.



F-8

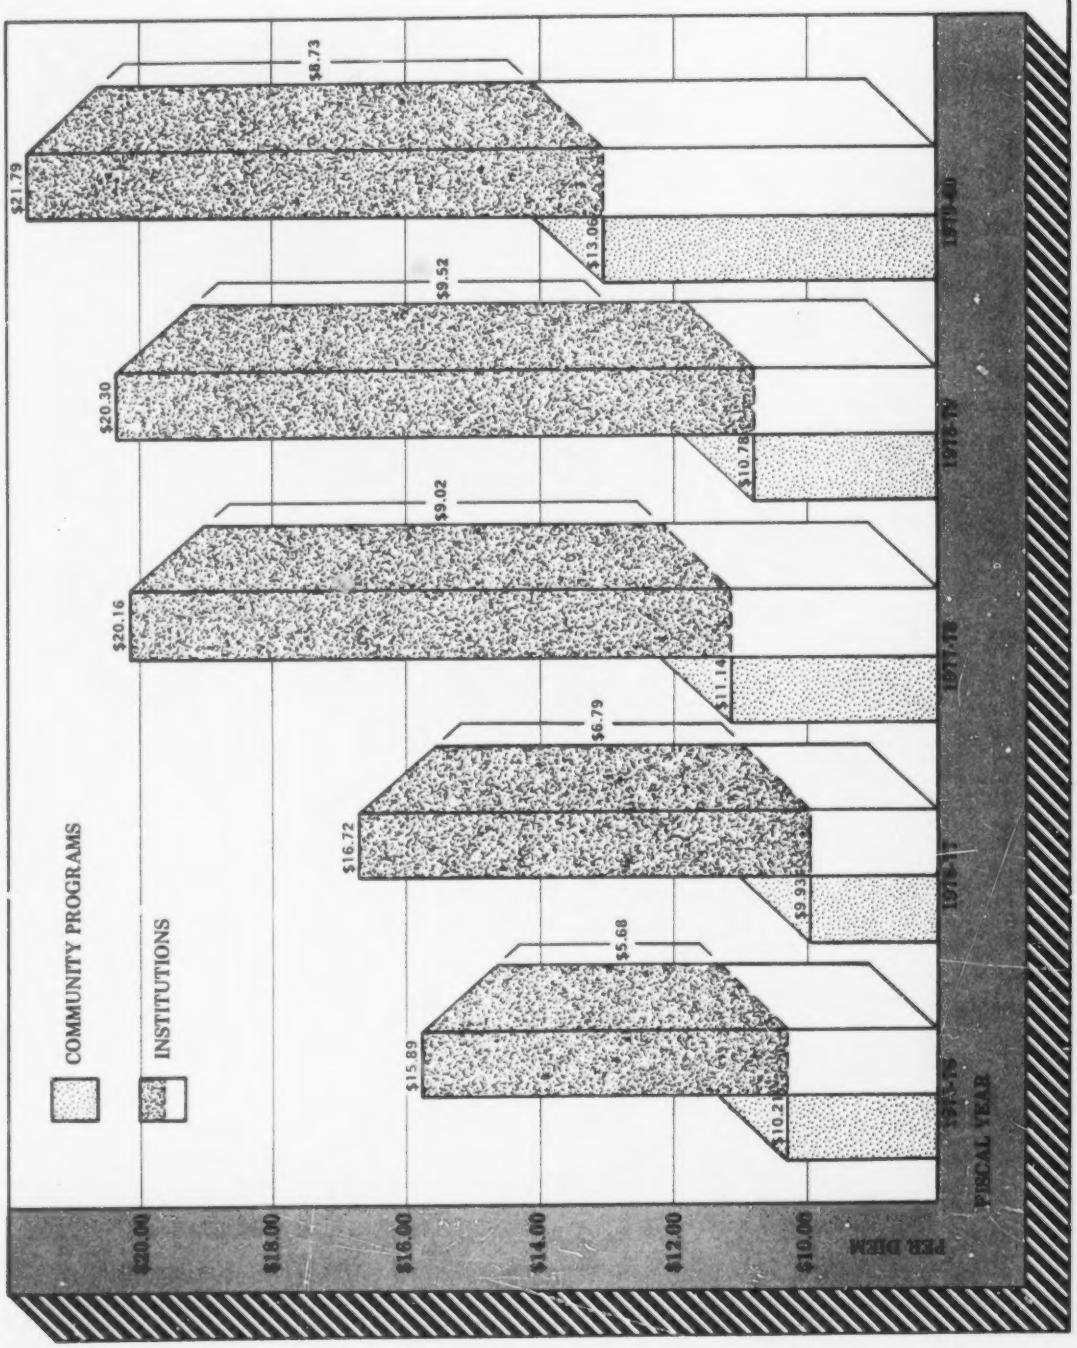
Escape Trends

Escapes have also shown wide fluctuations, but their trend, unlike disciplinary returns, has been generally increasing. However, the increase when viewed over the last six years has been at a lower rate than that of the population increase for the same period.



Costs F·9

Differences between community programs and institutional per diem costs has been substantial during each of the last five fiscal years. The total savings for this period over institutional housing costs totals $17.87 million (medical costs excluded).



Finance

The following statistics show how much was spent in the various areas and institutions during the 1979-80 fiscal year. A breakdown of the 80-81 budget also is included.
